News and Gossip of Men and Women Gleaned from Gay Capitals of Europe

What Women Are Doing in the Countries of Europe

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The long cherished theory that the world's surplus feminine population could be married off if it could be persuaded to migrate to the Antipodes is not borne out in a report of the Dominion's Royal commission upon the demand for women in Australia. Women are wanted badly in the great island continent, but not so much for marriage as for domestic servants.

So great is the demand, according to the report, that many of the girls sailing from England have been engaged by wireless as cooks and servants in Australian households before their steamer reached port. In some cases men have been so hard up for cooks that they have gone out in tugs to meet incoming vessels to make sure that they have the first pick of girls seeking employment. The first few days following the landing of the immigrants resembles an old hiring fair. The employers besiege the labor bureau in hundreds and in a short time every newcomer desiring domestic work is pretty certain to have secured a situation at wages more than double the sum which she could command in England.

The commission learned of complaints that the scarcity of servants in Australia involves such a burden on housewives that it was affecting seriously their health and even acting as a check upon the much desired increase of the population.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—The number of women students at German universities has been nearly quadrupled during the past six years, according to figures just announced. In the winter of 1908, when the doors of German universities were first fully thrown open to women there were 1,108 women students enrolled; today there are 2,686 women taking regular courses and as many more who are attending lectures. More than six per cent of the total number of students at the German universities are women. More than half of all the women are studying philosophy, languages and history; somewhat more than one-fourth are studying medicine, and more than one-fifth natural sciences.

Nearly 400 of the women students are foreigners. Russia sends the largest number, and America the next.

AMERICANS STUDY FOLK DANCES OF DENMARK

Plan to Substitute Pretty Movements for Gymnastics in American Girls' Schools; To Reproduce Elsinore Castle.

(By Associated Press.) Copenhagen, Feb. 24.—Several American teachers are here studying the old Danish folk dances with the idea of substituting them for gymnastics in girls' schools in America. In this city a big society has been formed for the preservation and promotion of Danish national dances. The movement was so widespread that it attracted the attention of Americans visiting here and resulted in the visit of the American teachers, who expressed themselves as delighted with the quaint dances. The teachers complain that gymnastics become very tiresome and boring to girls, and they believe that the dances will confer all of the benefits of the gymnastics and at the same time be a great source of pleasure to the students.

Anton Rosen, a local architect, has finished plans for the building which will be erected at the San Francisco exposition from a fund collected by Danish Americans. The building will be modeled on the famous castle of Hamlet's town, Elsinore, and like its historical prototype, will be situated on the sea. The building will not be used to house exhibits, which will be placed in another structure erected by the Danish government, but will be used as a headquarters for Danish Americans and their friends visiting the exposition. The structure will contain a big recital hall, reception rooms and offices. For the official Danish exhibition a splendid site has been procured and it is planned to make the exhibit small but typical of the very best Danish art and industry.

Dr. Carl Jacobsen, Denmark's great art patron, just before his death, confided to a friend that he intended to create a Danish Versailles, and the publication of the plan has led to the determination to carry out his ideas as a memorial of his services to the nation. The large sum to make the plan a success will be available from the Carlsberg fund, which was instituted by Jacobsen and to which he donated many millions for the encouragement and promotion of art in Denmark.

The Versailles, as planned by Dr. Jacobsen, will be erected in Frederiksberg, where the beautiful castle of that name with its extensive gallery of art and national historical treasures is already located. In connection with the castle all of the skill

The women have for three years been going more to the non-Prussian universities. Leipzig and Munich especially have had large gains in that time; and the smaller institutions like Jena, Wuerzburg and Freiburg have also made relatively large gains.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The Infanta Eulalia, aunt of King Alfonso of Spain is defying the conventionality which usually surrounds the presence of women of royalty in Paris. The Infanta recently learned from a member of her suite that a highly spiced Parisian vaudeville entertainment included an operetta, the scene of which was laid in Spain and Biarritz, a resort which she frequented often. She immediately engaged three stage boxes for that evening and with a party of friends enjoyed herself to the utmost, as did the audience, which quickly recognized the royal guest and derived great amusement from the fact that the king's aunt smoked throughout the performance, seated conspicuously in the front of one of the boxes. She lighted cigarette after cigarette, laughed heartily and commented loudly on the course of the production.

In the last act, one of the most popular Parisian comedians dressed in the familiar captain general's uniform and with features made up to resemble those of King Alfonso appeared in a box directly opposite the Infanta. The likeness of her nephew was so excellent that the king's aunt could hardly control her laughter.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23.—Promotion to a steamer in the American service has been promised to Mrs. Von Hauditz, Denmark's only woman sea captain, who is now commanding a vessel running between Rusek and England.

Mrs. Von Hauditz, who is the wife of a physician, was for a long time interested in yachting as a sport and after passing an examination for a master's license she took up the sea as a profession. So adept did she prove herself that a local shipping company soon gave her command of one of its largest steamers. Captain Von Hauditz wears a natty uniform with square cut coat and skirt of the same material. She is the first female captain in Denmark and she claims to be the only real feminine master mariner in the world.

of the landscape artist and sculptor will be called upon to create a Versailles park.

An English company is planning to harness Dettifoss, one of the largest water falls in Iceland with the plan of turning its estimated 410,000 horse power into an agency to extract fertilizer from the atmosphere.

The engineers estimate that the falls will develop more power than the works at Hardangerfjord and Odda in Norway. The engineers say they will have no difficulty in producing calcareous saltwater fertilizer from the air. The electric power will be transmitted to a nearby port, where splendid shipping facilities exist, and where factories for the production of the fertilizer will be built.

NEW MONOPLANE OF FRENCH AIR FLEET HAS ARMOR PLATE

Paris, Feb. 24.—Army experts are experimenting with a new monoplane which is to be the dreadnought of the French air fleet. One of these machines already tried out is protected with armor plates and carries a quick firing machine gun. It was designed from specifications furnished by the French army aviation corps after a careful study of the requirements in war as shown by the action of aeroplanes in Africa and in the Balkan wars.

GREEK PLAYS FOR 2,400 YEAR-OLD THEATRE

Hellenic Representation to Be Given at Ancient Syracuse; Agamemnon to Be Staged by Expert Translator.

(By Associated Press.)

Rome, Feb. 24.—The success of the Greek tragedies given in the antique open air theater at Fiesole, near Florence, and their reputation in Rome at the stadium has led to the still more ambitious project of giving Greek Hellenic representations at the Greek theater at Syracuse, more than 2,400 years old.

Prof. Ettore Ragnanelli, who has spent his life translating the Greek tragedies into Italian, has been entrusted with a new translation for the occasion of Agamemnon, the first part of Aeschylus's trilogy, and the staging of it. The costumes are all to be taken from the figures on Greek vases of the time, and which actually represent the characters in the tragedy.

As for the scenery little or nothing will have to be done to have the complete illusion of the city of Mycenae. The theater of Syracuse was the largest, after those of Miletus and Megalopolis, known to the ancient Greeks and was erected some time in the fifth century B. C. It was built out of the solid rock and is nearly semicircular in form, 46 of the original 61 tiers of seats still being in existence. Some of the tiers were divided into compartments, the Greek inscriptions, showing the names of their owners being still legible, and as many of them were feminine, this is indirect evidence that at Syracuse, at least, the theater was frequented by women, although it is denied by most historians. Nature has always combined to render this theater a thing of beauty. All about it are orange and lemon groves with their gold and yellow fruits, above is Mount Temonites, circled by the blue Ionian sea, while to the south opens the Temple of Jove. Amid such surroundings the lovers of Greek art and literature will welcome the return of Aeschylus to the city of his adoption this spring.

NEW DEVELOPMENT OF HIGH ART OF SMUGGLING

Count and Countess of Ancient German Family Do Thriving Business; American Climbs Jungfrau on Skis.

(By Associated Press.)

Geneva, Feb. 24.—Development of the fine art of smuggling to a new plane is charged in the case of titled persons detained at Prague pending an inquiry into the alleged operations. It is charged that the Count and Countess Gunther von Konigsmark, who are of an ancient German family, and who leave their headquarters in Zurich, where the manufacture of machinery is permitted, have been making frequent trips across the German and Austrian frontiers, accompanied by many servants in livery and baggage containing zinc, carmine. Customs officials generally do not venture to examine all the baggage of the nobility. However, at Prague recently, the party encountered inspectors who searched their effects and found evidence which prompted an inquiry into the operations. It is said that profits from the smuggling of zinc and carmine into Germany and Austria would amount to from 100 to 400 per cent.

A New York man, H. Wirth, has the honor of being the first American to climb the Jungfrau on skis, and incidentally he established a record for guide climbing. Accompanied by Herr Stuckey of St. Gall and Amster, the well known guide of Grindelwald, the New Yorker made the ascent of the Jungfrau, 13,678 feet, also ascended the Monch, 13,465 feet, and returned to Grindelwald, his starting point, after crossing the Fleisher glacier and Ebnemer glacier, all in forty-eight hours. was spent in an Alpine hut on the Jungfrau. The weather was fine and the snow in good condition. A splendid view of the Alps was obtained, but the cold was so intense that one could stand still only a few moments.

A remarkable avalanche recently occurred at Al. An Alpine hamlet in the canton of St. Gall. A farmer and his family had just sat down to dinner at noon when the avalanche fell from the neighboring heights, causing a great and violent displacement of air in the narrow valley. This force drove from their hinges and broke windows, while the members to the family were actually blown out of the house through doorless passages to the garden a considerable distance away. Curiously one was injured. A few minutes later the avalanche itself arrived and wrecked the whole farm, the walls giving away under the onslaught of snow and the roof falling in.

DISEASED WOMAN IS BRIBED TO DISCONTINUE HER BOARDING HOUSE

(By Associated Press.)

London, Feb. 24.—A peculiar bargain is being struck by some local governments in England for the prevention of the spread of disease. The Manchester city government has just agreed to grant a pension to a woman carrier of enteric germs in return for which she has given her promise to give up the keeping of a lodging house. According to reports of physicians attached to the local government board, the landlady was responsible for an epidemic of enteric fever among her lodgers, and it was decided to buy her off with a weekly pension.

A more serious case is reported from the West Riding of Yorkshire where a woman employed as a housekeeper at various farms is declared to be the source of sixty cases of enteric fever, six of which have proved fatal. For three years after her discharge from the hospital where she was treated for the fever she lived with her parents and no cases of infection were traced to her. Then she took up work as temporary housekeeper in the country and the enteric fever epidemic followed her from farm to farm. The local government board inspectors ordered her to return to the home of her parents and soon afterward the epidemic in the country ceased. The woman will be paid by the local government to remain at home.

In the British army a new regulation provides that a known carrier of enteric germs may be discharged with a condition refusing to respond to treatment and he is allowed a pension if he permits the fact that he is a carrier to be disclosed in his discharge papers.

REALISTIC STORY OF GOOD GIRL'S STRUGGLE IN PLAY

That favorite emotional actress, Margaret Illington, in "Within the Law," the reigning dramatic sensation of the year in both New York and London, will be seen here on March 7 at the Elks theater.

"Within the Law" tells in simple, sincere fashion, a wonderfully realistic story of a good girl's struggle in the underworld that moves the least impressionable in spite of himself. Mary Turner, the heroine, (Miss Illington), is an attractive young woman, who, early in her career as a working girl, is falsely accused of theft in the large dry goods emporium in which she is employed. She vehemently declares her innocence, but the grand-obsessed, hypocrite who employs her, and the judge before whom she is tried, insist that she should be made to stand as an example to all other shopgirls similarly tempted. She, therefore, is sentenced to serve three years in prison.

When released she seeks honorable employment. During her incarceration she had made use of the prison library and has become educated. She seeks and finds many positions, but in each instance she is hounded by the police, until finally she announces that so long as society refuses to be satisfied with the debt she has paid for a crime she did not commit, and refuses to accept her as anything but a thief, a thief she will be—but she will do her best to "Within the Law."

She will, in her own original way, play the game of the millionaire lawbreaker, who literally break the law under the law's protection. Matching her wit and courage against the brutality of the police, she develops into a woman of ingenuity and daring who preys upon society at will and defies punishment by employing the intricacies of the law to safeguard her questionable ventures. She also avenges herself on the canting hypocrite who sent her to prison when she was innocent, almost breaking his heart, through his son and heir, whom she lures into marriage.

Mary Turner's ultimate attainment of the position in the world to which she is entitled furnishes the play with its motive and the development of the theme of "Within the Law" provides a series of real surprises that are nerve-grIPPING in their dramatic intensity.
